

The Burgundy vineyard, a territory with an unequalled heritage, is ideally located in the north-eastern quarter of France, which also places it near the major European capitals.

Jean-Baptiste JESSIAUME estate is located in the South of Côte de Beaune

Côte de Beaune

Since Antiquity, and even more so in the Middle Ages, the Burgundy vineyards have been on a major trade route.

The presence of two great rivers, the Yonne to the north and the Saône to the east, has contributed like many great vineyards to its development outside the region and to its international reputation.

In 2015, two millennia after the first vines were planted, the precious climats were recognized as a UNESCO heritage site.

TERROIR: BURGUNDIAN CLIMATES AND LIEUX-DITS

Nowhere in the world is the notion of terroir as true as in the Burgundian climates. The hand of man has shaped, delimited and worked each parcel of land and made it unique.

Typically Burgundian, a climat is a delimited parcel with specific geological and climatic conditions, like micro-gardens nested one within the other, forming a mosaic of world-famous hierarchical crus.

When it is surrounded by walls, it is called a "clos".

JEAN-BAPTISTE JESSIAUME
Grands Vins de Bourgogne

Representing the sixth generation of the Jessiaume family.....

...Jean-Baptiste is proud to honour this history, leading today is own maison.

THE ORIGIN OF THE CROSS (on bottles)

The cross located at the exit of SANTENAY is called "La mission JESSIAUME". The ancestor of Jean-Baptiste (second generation), very pious, had made a donation to the bishopric of DIJON, which in gratitude made the offering of the cross to the family. For the record, the same ancestor, touched but embarrassed, paid for the bells of the church in Santenay. Thus, if one goes up to the bell tower, one will see a bell on which is engraved " Elisa Jessiaume ".

« My heritage is not solely a succession, it is also of a demanding nature. An expectation to guarantee the exceptional quality that has led our family's wine to their recognition » JEAN-BAPTISTE JESSIAUME

THE ALCHEMY BETWEEN MAN
AND WINE

THE IMPORTANCE OF MUSIC

Each wine has a signature. Jean-Baptiste and his father Marc try to bring out the best expression of terroirs in the wines through the resonance of music. A doctor friend of theirs made a technical sheet of the metals and minerals in each wine, considering that each amino acid corresponds to a musical note. The result is a frequency, a particular vibration that can resonate with the appropriate music. Several tests have been carried out and it is clearly classical music that works best, particularly BACH and MOZART; with a preference for the latter because $\frac{3}{4}$ of his music was composed during childhood, which is a different frequency.

Being in tune with our wines enables us to better understand them, to experience their vibrations.

In short, all the wines are aged with MOZART

The climatic variations and richness of the soil allow us to create a rich and generous range of fine and distinguished wines, whose character brings out the best of the Burgundy grape varieties.
